

FISHIN IN ZAMBIA

FISHIN IN ZAMBIA began as a series of correspondence to my children who were away from normal family life undergoing the ritual of boarding school: My book contains many photographs of fishing friends, places, maps etc. A.a.aw Da.a.ad, come on Dad, come fishing Dad, Dad you will enjoy it. I will never forget those words as long as I live. Me??, go fishing??, sat there with a rod and line and watch a painted quill bob up and down in the water all day, youve got to be joking, besides Ive got better things to do and things to fix!! Dad, you will enjoy it Tracy pleaded with me, Its so peaceful and quiet, the birds are something to be seen, there are crocodiles to see there and Bobs got a motor so we go out in one of the hire boats to go fishing with, Dad youll love it! It was the worst thing I did in my life (metaphorically speaking). For that initial expedition eventually cost me thousands of pounds in the procurement of fishing rods, reels together with all the other paraphernalia. All deemed necessary to entice a stupid aquatic to bite on a multi-coloured fish shaped appetiser and find itself caught on a barbed treble hook.....
