

Storylines: Lines of poetry, lines of art

What if an artist had no limitations? Often well read stories and the illustrations are made to fit specifications. There is little leeway. The artists work is suppressed. But weve tried something different. When I looked at my daughters art, stories started coming to me in the form of poems. Just as she was free with every line she drew, I was free with every word I wrote. I simply let her sing, and I harmonized. Not only do we share a bond as mother and daughter, we share an appreciation for art. And we believe in order for art to be pure, it needs to be without restrictions.
